

81.065 Ohio River and state streams as boundaries -- Jurisdiction.

Cities bounded in part by the Ohio River shall have concurrent jurisdiction with the Commonwealth over the waters of the river opposite to the city. If the boundary between a city and one (1) or more other cities, or between a city and a county other than that in which the city is situated, is a stream within the state, the city shall have concurrent jurisdiction with the other city or cities, or the county, over the waters of the stream opposite to the city.

Effective: July 15, 1980

History: Created 1980 Ky. Acts ch. 115, sec. 3, effective July 15, 1980.