

81A.520 Annexation of impoundments of water by cities of the fifth class.

As an alternative to other methods of annexation of territories by cities and in addition to the methods heretofore provided by law any city of the fifth class may annex to the city any portion or all of any impoundment of water, not on a navigable stream, adjoining the city, created by a dam constructed by the annexing city from which that city lawfully obtains all or any part of its water supply including any lands lying within fifty (50) feet of such impounded water by enacting and publishing an ordinance describing accurately the boundary of the territory to be annexed provided however that the area annexed shall not exceed one-fourth (1/4) acre multiplied by the number of inhabitants of the annexing city.

History: Created 1972 Ky. Acts ch. 57, sec. 1.

Formerly codified as KRS 81.295.